HOW DID THE FUND PERFORM IN THE LAST SIX MONTHS?

The Fund returned +6.64% for the 6 months ended March 31, 2025. This is in contrast to the MSCI World Index, which had a -1.95% return for the same time period and the S&P Global Infrastructure Index, which had a +1.67% return. During the period, investments providing the strongest contribution to the Fund's performance within the Utilities sector included: Enel SPA, Iberdrola SA, Duke Energy, and Exelon; within the Communications sector: T-Mobile, AT&T, Deutsche Telekom, and Orange SA; and within the Energy sector included: Targa Resources, Kinder Morgan, Oneok, Williams, and Cheniere. Stocks that contributed negatively to the Fund's performance included HCA Healthcare, Generac, Entergy, and Vestas Wind Systems.

In the Energy sector, the secular opportunity for green energy and ESG awareness remains intact despite recent setbacks in autos and wind power generation. However, the cyclical opportunities due to stable oil & gas prices remain strong resulting from supply constraints being imposed at the same time demand is rising. In particular, the value of legacy pipeline assets will increase dramatically, especially those used for natural gas liquefaction and export. In the Utilities sector, sees potential further transformation of the sector from being historically a "bond proxy" to growth industry as demand for electricity increases, as well as remaining an excellent inflation hedge from regulated power generation assets. In the Communications sector, the Fund's adviser expects tax and R&D incentives to be most impactful, raising returns on incremental capital investments.

In the Fund, diversification across regions and developed countries as well as being balanced across the Telecommunication, Utilities, Energy, Transportation, and Social Infrastructure sectors should aid in returns and risk management. The Fund's adviser believes its disciplined, high conviction approach to stock selection, with a cognizance of risk management, seems positioned to perform well relative to less risk aware and less historically appreciative strategies.
